Treatment Summary

Patient:	Samantha Holland
Treating provider:	Zachary Johnson, DC
Diagnosis:	wrist fracture

Clinical Treatment Summary

Patient presented following a side-impact motor vehicle clolision at an intersection with pain and swelling of the left wrist. Initial imaging demonstrated a displaced distal radius fracture, and closed reduction was performed with immobilization in a short arm cast. Follow-up radiographs confirmed maintianed alignment, and the patient was transitioned to a removable splint at the subsequent stage of healing.

Over the course of care, the patient completed 22 outpatient visits, including orthopedic reviews, serial imaging, and supervised physical therapy focused on range of motion, grip strength, and functional recovery. Pain was managed with a stepwise analgesic plan, and occupational therapy addressed return to daily activities and work tasks.

At the most recent evaluation, the fracture showed radiographic union with near-full wrist mobility and improving grip strength. Residual stiffness and intermittent discomfort with heavy lifting remain. Continued home exercise and periodic reassessment are recommended. Prognosis for full functional recovery is considered good.
