Treatment Summary

Patient:	Rebecca Blackwell
Treating provider:	David Dickerson, DC
Diagnosis:	shoulder injury

Clinical Treatment Summary

Patient presented following a side-impact collision at an intersection with acute right shoulder pain, limited range of motion, and difficulty with overhead reaching. Initial evaluation documented pain with active abduction and positive impingement signs, with clinical findings consistent with a rotator cuff strain and associated soft tissue injury. Imaging was reviewed and showed no fracture or dislocation.

Treatment over the course of care included 25 visits consisting of manual therapy, progressive therapeutic exercise for rotator cuff and scapular stabilization, modalities for pain and inflammation control, and home exercise program instruction. Pain scores improved steadily from the initial presentation, and range of motion approached functional limits by the later phase of care.

At discharge, the patient demonstrated improved strength and function with residual mild discomfort during heavier overhead activity. Continued home exercise and activity modification were recommended, with follow-up as needed for any rceurrence of symptoms.
