Treatment Summary

Patient:	James Golden
Treating provider:	Rachel Bell, DC
Diagnosis:	back strain

The patient presented following a side-impact motor vehicle collision at an intersection, reporting acute low back pain with muscle spasm and stiffness radiating into the right paraspianl region. Initial examination showed restricted lumbar range of motion, tenderness over the lumbar paraspinal muscles, and no focal neurological deficits. Imaging was not indicated at the initial visit given the absence of red-flag findings. The working diagnosis was lumbar strain.

Over the course of eight visits, treatment included manual therapy, guided therapeutic exercise, progressvie core stabilization work, and a home exercise program with postural education. Pain was managed with short-term over-the-counter anti-inflammatory medication and intermittent heat application. The patient's range of motion and pain scores improved steadily, and by the final visit lumbar mobility was near baseline with minimal residual tenderness. Functional tolerance for prolonged sitting and lifting had improved. The patient was discharged to self-directed home exercise with instructions to return if symptoms recur or worsen.
