Description of the accident (claimant's words)

I was making a left turn at a green-light intersection in Sugar Land, Texas, heading toward the shopping center on the far side. I had already moved partly into the intersection when a vehicle coming from the opposite direction struck the front driver's side of my car. I did not see the other car approaching before the impact, and I believe I had a green light when I started my turn. The collision threw my arm against the steering wheel and door frame. I felt sharp pain in my left wrist right away and could not grip anything. An ambulance took me to the emergency room, where X-rays showed a fracture of the wrist. My car was towed from the scene, and the police officer who responded prepared a report, which I have included with this claim.
