Treatment Summary

Patient:	Ivan Wells
Treating provider:	John Vasquez, DC
Diagnosis:	neck and back strain

Clinical Treatment Summary

Patient presented following a side-impact motor vehicle collision that occurred at an intersection. Presenting complaints included cervical and lumbar pain with associated muscle spasm, restricted range of motion in the neck and low back, and intermittent headaches. Initial examination was consistent with cervical and lumbar strain without evidence of fracture or neurological deficit on clinical assessment.

Over the course of care, the patient completed 26 visits consisting of manual therapy, therapeutic exercise, posture education, and progressive stabilization training. Pain scores and range of motion improved steadily over the treatment period, with reduced reliance on muscle relaxants and improved tolerance for daily activities and work duties.

At the most recent evaluation, the patient reported substantial but incomplete resolution of symptoms. Residual mild stiffness with prolonged sitting and occasional neck discomfort persists. Ongoing home exercise program and ergonomic modifications have been recommended. Further follow-up will be arranged as needed to monitor progress and address any recurrnece of symptoms.
