Treatment Summary

Patient:	Erin Anderson
Treating provider:	Vincent Tran, DC
Diagnosis:	shoulder injury

Treatment Summary

The patient presented following a low-speed collision in a parking lot with complaints of right shoulder pain, reduced range of motion, and intermittent numbness radiating into the right arm. Initial examination revealed tenderness over the anterior shoulder, limited active abduction and external rotation, and mild weakness on resisted testing. Imaging obtained at intake showed no fracture, with findings consistent with soft tissue strain and a pratial rottaor cuff injury.

Over the course of 14 visits, the patient participated in a structured program of physical therapy focused on passive and active range of motion, progressive strengthening of the rotator cuff and scapular stabilizers, and manual therapy to address soft tissue restriction. Anti-inflammatory medication and ice were used for symptom control during the early phase.

At the most recent visit, the patient reported substantial improvement in pain and function, with active range of motion approahcing the unaffected side and strength near baseline. Residual mild discomfort with overhead activity persists. Continued home exercise and activity modification are recommended, with follow-up as needed for any recurrnece of symptoms.
