Treatment summary

Treatment Summary

The patient presented after a collision in which another vehicle struck the patient's car while the patient was turning left. The patient repotred neck pain and stiffness beginning shortly after the impact, consistent with a whiplash-type mechanism for a crash of this kind. Over three visits, the patient was managed with a standard cousre of conservative care, including range-of-motion exercises, the use of a cervical collar for a short period, and as-needed anti-inflammatory medication. Examination findings included reduced cervical range of motion and tenderness over the paraspinal muscles, which support the reported injury. Neurological screening and imaging-related assessments were within normal limits. The patient reported no prior injury to the neck or upper back. Symptoms improved steadily, and care was tapered and then discontinued as the patient's function returned toward baseline. Two charges with similar service descriptions submitted on the same day are currently under review by the billing office.
