Treatment summary

Patient presented following a rear-end motor vehicle collision with complaints of neck pain, stiffness, and reduced range of motion. The reported injury is consistent with the mechanism and force of the collision. Care was delivered over twelve visits, which is somewhat longer than typically expected for a cervical strain of this type, with conservative management including manual therapy, strecthing exercises, and modalities for pain control. Examination revealed paraspinal muscle tenderness and limited cervical rotation that support the diagnosis, while neurological screening and strength testing were within normal limits. No prior injury or treatment to the cervical region is known to this provider. Billing records reflect single entries for each service with no duplicate or repeated charges. Patient was progressing toward functional goals at the most recent visit, and a home exercise program has been provided with instructions to follow up as needed.
