Treatment summary

Patient presented following a collision that occurred while the patient was turning left, with a reported impact to the wrist. Imaging and examination findings clearly confirm a fracture of the wrist. No prior injury to the same body area is known to this provider. The causal link between this incident and the fracture is not yet clear and is still under review. Five visits were completed. Tretament followed a usual course, including immobilization, pain management, and follow-up imaging, and tapered off as the patient improved. Function has returned to near baseline, with residual stiffness expected to resolve with routine home exercises. Two simliar billing charges from the same day are currently being verified by the office. Ongoing monitoring is recommended, and the patient will be seen again if symptoms worsen or fail to improve as expected.
