Q: Please state your full name for the record.

A: I'd rather not put my full name in a transcript for this, but I understand the names will be handled through the protective order. You can refer to me as the plaintiff.

Q: That's fine. Where were you on the day of the collision?

A: I was driving home from work on a two-lane road in Pasadena, Texas. It was late afternoon and traffic was moderate.

Q: Describe what happened.

A: A vehicle coming from the opposite direction drifted over the center line. I braked and steered to the right, but we still made contact. It was a head-on impact, though not a hard one. The airbags did not deploy.

Q: How fast were you traveling?

A: The speed limit was around thirty-five. I wasn't going much faster than that, maybe slightly under.

Q: Did you feel pain immediately after the collision?

A: Not right away. I felt shaken and a little stiff. By the next morning my neck was sore and my lower back had a dull ache that kept getting worse over the following days.

Q: Did you seek medical care?

A: Yes. A family member drove me to an urgent care clinic that same evening, and then I saw my primary care doctor about a week later. They referred me to a physical therapist.

Q: What treatment have you received since then?

A: I've been going to physical therapy about two or three times a week. I was also prescribed muscle relaxers and an anti-inflammatory medication. I did a few sessions of massage therapy on my own, which my doctor said was fine as long as I kept up the exercises at home.

Q: How has the injury affected your daily life?

A: Mostly it's made simple things harder. I used to coach my kid's soccer team on weekends, and I had to hand that off for a while. Sitting at my desk for long stretches leaves my back aching, and I've had trouble sleeping on my left side. I still do most of my own errands, but I take more breaks than I used to.

Q: Have you returned to work?

A: Yes, I went back to work after about two weeks, though I was on modified duties for a time and I stand up more often now.
