Treatment summary

Patient presented after a low-speed collision in a parking lot with complaints of right shoulder pain and restricted range of motion. Over three visits, the injury was assessed as consistent with the mechanism of the crash, and the clinical course followed a typical pattern of gradual improvement, with visit frequency decreasing as symptoms eased. On examination, several findings supoprt a soft tissue injury to the shoulder, while other orthopedic and neurological tests were within normal limits. The records also show a prior history of treatment to the same shoulder region within the last two years, and that earlier condition appears to contribute to some of the current complaints. Billing for the episode reflects single charges for each service, with no repeated or duplicate entries. Continued home exercise and over-the-counter analgesia were recommended, with follow-up as needed should symtpoms return.
