Treatment summary

Patient presented following a rear-end motor vehicle collision with pain and swelling of the left wrist. Two office visits were completed. Radiographs demonstrated a distal radius fracture consistent with the reported mechanism of injury, and the nature and force of the collision are well matched to this type of injury. On examination, localized tenderness, swelling, and reduced grip strength were documented over the fracture site, while neurvoascular testing of the hand and sensation in the fingers were within normal limits. The patient reports no prior injury or treatment involving this wrist. Recovery has been somewhat slower than typically expected for this fracture, and the patient rmeains in a remvoable splint with a follow-up scheduled for further assessment. Billing records from the two visits show single charges for each service with no duplicate entries.
