Treatment summary

Patient presented following a low-speed collision in a praking lot with complaints of neck and back pain. Symptoms are consistent in location and character with the mechanism of injury, and the rpeorted froce of the impact is in keeping with soft tissue strian of the cervical and lumbar regions. Examination at the first visit showed paraspinal muscle tenderness and restricted range of motion in the neck and lower back. Imaigng obtained during treatment clearly confirms the soft tissue injury. The patient's history includes a remote, minor strain involving the same region, which resolved completely with conservative care and had no lasting effect on function. Treatment consisted of two visits with a conservative plan including gentle stretching, home exercise instruction, and as-needed analgesics. Care followed a typical course and tapered as the patient improved, with pain and mobility steadily returning toward baseline. Billing records reflect single entries for each service with no repeated charges.
