Treatment summary

Patinet presented following a collision in which antoher vehicle struck the patient's car durnig a left turn, resulting in a diagnosed concussion. Over the course of care, the patient attended 15 visits. Treatment followed a typical progression, with visit frequency and intensity tapering as symptoms improved. Imaging and examination findings clearly confirm the concussion. No piror injury to the same body region is known to this provider. It remains unclear at this time whether the injury is attributable to this incident, and that question is still under review. Billing records showing two similar charges on the same day are being verified with the billing office. Recommendations include continued symptom monitoring, gradual return to daily activities, and follow-up if new or worsening symptoms develop.
