Q: Please state your full name for the record.

A: I'd rather not give my full name on the record, so I'll just say I'm the plaintiff in this matter.

Q: Understood. Can you describe how the collision happened?

A: I was driving through an intersection in Pearland, Texas. I had a green light, or at least I believed I did. A vehicle coming from my right entered the intersection and struck the driver's side of my car.

Q: Had you been to that intersection before?

A: Yes, I drive through it several times a week on my way to work.

Q: Did you see the other vehicle before the impact?

A: Only for a moment. I noticed it as it came into view, but there was no time to react. It was over almost immediately.

Q: What did you do immediately after the collision?

A: I sat for a bit because my arm hurt badly and I was shaken. A bystander came over and asked if I was okay. Then I called the police and waited for them to arrive.

Q: Did you seek medical treatment that day?

A: Yes. An ambulance took me to the emergency room. They took X-rays and told me my wrist was fractured.

Q: What treatment have you received since then?

A: I had a cast put on first, and then I was referred to an orthopedic specialist. I've had follow-up appointments and physical therapy sessions. Some weeks were harder than others to keep up with.

Q: How has the injury affected your daily life?

A: Simple things are difficult. I have trouble opening jars, gripping a coffee mug, and buttoning shirts. I'm right-handed, so writing and typing have been slow and painful. I had to ask a coworker to help me with some tasks at work.

Q: Have you been able to perform your usual activities at home?

A: Not fully. I used to cook most of my family's dinners, and I've had to cut back. My partner has taken on more of the household chores, and I feel bad about that.

Q: Has your doctor given you an expected recovery timeline?

A: They said it could take several months before I regain full strength and range of motion, and they haven't ruled out additional therapy.
