Description of the accident (claimant's words)

I was backing out of a parking space at a shopping center in Sugar Land, Texas, moving slowly, when the other vehicle came around the end of the row and struck the rear passenger side of my car. I stopped immediately, stayed at the scene, and exchanged information with the other driver. Afterward I noticed a stiff, sore neck, which I have since been treating as a neck strain. I have told the same version of events each time I have described the collision. When I later remembered a few more small details, such as the position of the other car's headlights, I added them, but the core sequence stayed the same. I am the named drievr on this policy and I was the one operating my vehicle at the time of the accident.
