Description of the accident (claimant's words)

I was changing lanes on a highway in Katy, Texas, checking my mirror as I moved over, when the car in the next lane drifted into my side and scraped along my door panel. Both vehicles pulled to the shoulder, and I stayed in my seat for a few minutes while I caught my breath. Later that evening my lower back began to tighten and ache, and I went in for a checkup the next day. The doctor diagnosed a back strain. Looking back, I remembered a few more small details about the moment of impact, but the core of what happened has not changed since I first described it. I am making this claim as a member of the household, since I live with the policyholder and am covered under the policy as a resident family member.
