Description of the accident (claimant's words)

I was backing out of a parking space at a shopping center in Sugar Land, Texas, moving slowly, when the other vehicle came around the end of the row and struck the rear passenger side of my car. Both of us stopped right away and exchanged insurance details. I was the one behind the wheel and I am the policyholder listed on this policy. Afterward I felt a stiff, sore pain in my neck, which a doctor later diagnosed as a neck strain. When I was asked to go over what happened, I recalled a few more small details, such as where the other car was parked before it moved, but my core account of the collision has not changed from the start.
